Working with children

The Department of State Growth is committed to encouraging the involvement of young people and children in the arts, both as participants in the creative process and as audience members. Such involvement needs to be within a set of safeguards that protect children from exploitation and harm.

For the assessment of selected programs, we may request that experts apply for a Working with Vulnerable People check.

Checks are conducted by the Department of Justice. There is a fee associated with the check. People applying for the register can select the volunteer rate.
